The Colored Man—His Future in the United States.

Editor's Morning Herald.

In view of the fact that within the next twelve months the important duty of choosing as chief magistrate of this nation for the ensuing Presidential term devolves upon the American people, and further, that at no period since the formation of this government has there existed such a general judgment, incessant vigilance and firm adhesion to moral principles, more imperatively necessary, to its perpetuation than at this moment, when the enemies of both the government and of popular freedom are resorting to every means, however corrupt or debase, to obtain power, and thereby subvert the glorious institutions erected at such a fearful cost of blood and treasure. I see it incumbent on every loyal and intelligent citizen or person employing the protection, or desiring the permanent prosperity of this Government, to add his mite to the general fund, for the promotion of the general good, however otherwise insignificant that mite may appear to be.

These thoughts, Messrs. Editors, are suggested by the fact that since the last general election, the vast number of 800,000 freedmen of African origin have been added to the body politic of this nation, and the very nature of their former condition, are set out in the alphabet of their civil and political education.

These people by the almost superhuman labor and sacrifices of the Republicans have been drawn from the most hopeless and debasing servitude (to which they were consigned by the systematic policy of the Democratic party, when in power), and elevated to the dignity of co-laborers with the highest intelligences of the land, all that human will, human effort, and human means can do to redeem and elevate this element, has been, and is still being done; and if I am allowed to assume the Herculean accomplishment of the past few years, as a basis of future calculation, I incline to the belief that a people, in any age or country, ever enjoyed so fluttering a prospect of self-elevation as do the colored people of the United States at this period. But this is not all, our task is only begun, but not ended. Our friends have exhausted their power to serve us, they have laid for us a broad and deep foundation for the erection of a solid, substantial, to which our posterity may point with pride. It now only remains for us to improve the time and the opportunities within our grasp, by the abandonment of every worthy pursuit or profession, and the seizure and appropriation of every elevating element to the establishment of a manly and dignified character. And in doing this let us remember that the attainment of this desired end, like the seizing of every other blessing or reward, is as it should be, accompanied by conditions which demand impulsive obedience, the first of which consists in the cheerful performance of every moral, mental and physical duty tending to the promotion of domestic, civil or political happiness, and that until this primary lesson is thoroughly committed to memory, and is strongly committed to persistent practice, our boasted equality and citizenship exists—name only—our efforts will prove abortive; as a people we will become the mere sport and tools of every designing impostor, and as apt to be led by the blind glares of the Democratic "ignoramus"—as we are to follow the glorious star of promise which thus far has guided both ourselves and our deliverers in our march to the temple of an enduring fame.

I reply to the sneers and slanders of our hereditary enemies of the Democratic party, who charge us with destitution of a sufficiency of moral and intellectual power to maintain our present position. I would simply remark that it is unreasonable to expect that a whole people, suddenly emerging from the lower strata of moral, mental and physical degradation (to which that party consigned us), should immediately commence criminal proceedings against them. We are met by an irascible fellow, brown in hand, who told us we "couldn't come in" until we had brushed our feet, and at the same time intimating to the gentleman that he was a "riffraff," and that we would find a basket and scrubbing brush at the back door. I intimated to the old gentlemen that we were all quite civilized, and wore shoes, and as far as the law allows, we could be decently dressed, but he insisted in maintaining that the bill himself. After he was satisfied, we started on the ascent. Up, up, we went, and we would have taken a rest near the half-way point. At last, a shout made us all dizzy, and the tower was struck by lightning but no serious damage was done.

The wreck is the largest fortification in the harbor and is situated on the point of Santa Rosa Island, directly opposite Fort Barrancas. There are no troops there at present and the fort is completely dismantled, with the exception of one fifteen inch gun on the northwest bastion.

The fort is under charge Ordnance Department, United States Army. Fort

Mr. Paul Gaston's Letter to the Colored People.

The letter of Mr. Paul Gaston adressed to us, really concerns the colored people, and merits their consideration.

It is full of sound argument and excellent counsel.

Mr. Gaston himself is a colored man of no mean intellectual rank.

He has been educated at the best schools in this country and France, reads the ancient classics with ease, speaks and writes with correctness several modern languages.

Of his literary skill, our readers have had ample opportunity to judge,

from his frequent contributions to the MORNING HERALD, discussions of European diplomats, translations from French papers and periodicals, and reminiscences of Paris and French celebrities, literary, political and military.

Mr. Gaston was a soldier in the Crimean War and, in this respect, our readers

have had ample opportunity to judge,

from his frequent contributions to the MORNING HERALD, discussions of European diplomats, translations from French papers and periodicals, and reminiscences of Paris and French celebrities, literary, political and military.

BRILLIANT AURORAL DISPLAY.—There was a brilliant display of the Aurora

Borealis shortly after sunset last evening.

This remarkable phenomenon is supposed to be an acknowledgment of snow connection.

With these possessions, the colored man will not fail to win respect and influence.

These will, of course, be handed over to the colored men till they are ready to be used.

The reason why she has deferred her coming so long, is that she is engaged in teaching a Kindergarten near Boston, which does not close its present term till the middle of this month.

She leaves her school at the close of the term to come to us to us, having extended to her indu ments sufficient to prevail upon her to change her field of labor.

The rooms procured for the use of the Kindergarten are situated on the corner of Martin and Walnut streets, in the building just erected by Mr. Harris.

They are on the second floor, commodious and well lighted, affording ample space, both for instruction and recrea tion, and are provided with water and water-closets on the same floor.

The terms for tuition will be $15 a quarter, (ten weeks), to be paid in advance.

We will yet receive four more names for the present term, which may be left at my office.

We propose to spare no pains in mak ing this first-class Kindergarten, where parents will feel it to be a privilege to have their children taught by such experienced teachers.
